STATE MEDICAL APPLICATIONS
AND RESULTS OF THE RAWLEYSPRINGS WATER, ROCKINGHAM COUNTY, VA.

From the analysis, as well as from the testimony of these gentlemen, wa are satisfied that the water is specially applicable in that wide range of cases in which we have anemia and its consequences in the multiform disturbances of nutrition and incated under circumstances requiring its form in a condition acceptable to the digestive organs, and not demanding astringency; and it is doubtful whether there be any other form of iron more acceptable to the plaint and stomach, more easily assimilated, more prompt in its action, and of greates efficiency.

While, of course, these morbid conditions occur in other classes, they are especially requent with persons overworked, either mentally or physically, and those suffering from chrone disorders of the reproductive organs.

The committee consider themselves for-

from chronic disorders of the reproductive organs.

The committee consider themselves fortunate to have had it in their power to examine particularly into the efficiency of these valuable waters, and they deem it one of the greatest advantages of the Society's meeting at the different springs that it affords them an opportunity of ascertaining the peculiar properties of each of the waters, and enables them to give intelligent advice to invalids requiring such aids as may be derived from change of climate and medicinal waters. And as it is the case that these waters have decided therapeutic powers, it is specially desirable that any lids resorting to them should make use them under judicious and competent medical advice.

CLUVERIUS UP AGAIN.

NEW MOTION FOR NEW TRIAL. Savare Alibi Abundoned-Motion for New Triel Mude on Another Point and Over-

Last Saturday counsel for defence submitted to the Court the draft of an affidavit which they were informed Mr. Johnson, night clerk at Ford's Hotel, would swear to upon the subject of newly-discovered evidence. The witness of whom Mr. Johnson spoke was Savage. Savage has recently stated that he never saw Cluverius in his life, that he never saw Cluverius in his life, and was not in Richmond on the night of the murder; but Judge Atkins having appointed yesterday to hear the motion as to this evidence, the prisoner was brought up from jail about 11 o'clock. The crowd waiting to see him as he passed into the court was far smaller than what it was when the trial was going what it was when the trial was going on. Prisoner looked hollow-eyed and thin. He is steadily if not rapidly declining in flesh under the combined effects of imprisonment and care. His nerves seem as strong as ever; but as he is a small man, and in court sits in quite a large arm-chair, he is able to give him-self a steadiness that he might not otherwise have. In court, too, he sum mons to his face the most pleasant expression he can command.

MAKES ANOTHER AFFIDAVIT. Prisoner sat in court all alone for ar hour yesterday. He had his eyes for most of the time fixed on the ceiling. Nearly all the people in the court-room had their eyes on him. It is as fascinating as a puzzle to look into his face. People who once begin it, given the op-portunities, will follow it hour by hour. There he sat by himself from 11 to 12. His brother was not at hand. His father and mother and aunt are down the country, and counsel were in the Judge's room. At 12 o'clock Mr. Beverley Crump appeared in court, went up to prisoner, laid a paper before him, and went off. Prisoner took his eyes off the distant ceiling, and placed them on the paper. He read it over without change of countenance. By the time that was done, Mr. Walter Christian, deputy clerk of the court and notary public, came in, and pri-soner made affidavit to the statements in the paper. Next the Judge went on the bench and counsel to their seats. Mr. Meredith was present for the Commonwealth. Messrs. W. W. and B. T. Crump and A. Brown Evans were present for the defence. Colonel Aylett tention, and knows that the case is safe in the hands of Mr. Meredith. NEWLY-DISCOVERED EVIDENCE. Mr. Evans, addressing his Honor, said that they had no motion to make predicated upon the affidavits mentioned ast Saturday for reasons that have been made public through the press. They, however, had a motion to make on the ground of newly-discovered evi-dence, and in explanation he read the affidavit of the prisoner, setting forth that since the trial it had come to their knowledge that Dr. Joseph R. Garlick could prove an important fact.

was down the country. He has important business there claiming his at-

DR. GARLICK'S AFFIDAVIT. Next Mr. Evans read Dr. Garlick's affidavit as follows : State of Virginia-City of Richmond-

to-wit : made oath that he is a citizen of the county of King and Queen, and the principal of Bruington Female Insti-tute, in said county; that he knew well F. L. Madison, the person whose dead body, it is said, was found in the Old reservoir, in the city of Richmond, on the morning of the 14th of March, 1885; that she was a pupil at the aforesaid institute during the session of 1880-'81; that during said session the said F. L. Madison, in the discharge of her school duties and otherwise, had to write composition and letters and other exercises, all of him, the said affiant, for his inspection and correction; that the said F. L. Madison, since she left the said institute, has written to different members of affiant's family, himself included which letters, for the most part, he has seen; that he has in his possession a letter to himself, written from Millboro Springs October 22, 1884, by said F. L. That he, the said affiant, has had exhibited to him this day the note that was introduced as evidence for the Commonwealth in the trial of T. J. Cluverius, and is said to have been found in the waste-basket or box at the American Hotel on the — day of March, 1885, and the envelope in which the said note was contained at the time it was exhibited to him this day for the purpose of ascertaining from him whether the said note and the superscription on said envelope were in the handwriting of the said F. L. Madison. He has no question of the fact that the note is in her handwring; that his conviction is positive that the handwriting on the envelope is not that of F. L. Madison, and that this conviction is founded upon his intimate knowledge of the handwriting of F. L. Madison, acquired as heretofore stated and by comparison of said superscription with the writings of F. L. Madison now in possession of the affiant. JOSEPH R. GARLICK. Subscribed and sworn to by said Jo eph R. Garlick before me this 26th day of June, 1885. WALTER CHRISTIAN, Notary Public.

Mr. Evans said this is not an unmes motion. It is material and vital, and he went on to argue it was quite impossible, in view of the testi-mony of Mr. Dodson and his son that deceased was at dinner about 1 o'clock, that she could have been the woman seen at Belle Isle at 12:30 and for some ime thereafter; that the identification of isoner at the American was vague nd uncertain, and that about all there was linking him with the hotel and the roman was the note. So he argued hat the address was a vital point, and and in view of all the circumstances he thought they were warranted in claim-ing a new trial. Mr. Evans urged his views for the reasons stated and " in abundance of her writing: they intro-duced the letters she wrote Mrs. Tun-stall; they might have gotten an ex-pert and put him on the stand; they knew of Dr. Garliek and could have got him. None of these things they did. Therefore, the motion does not come within the rule. Further, Mr. Mere-

More than that, her father identified the note and the address as her handwriting. Admitting Dr. Garlick's high characters of intelligence. Mr. Meredith declarate and intelligence, Mr. Meredith declared stand against such testimony. We know that the note and address on the envelope were written hurriedly; when she was excited probably, and getic way contributed much towards its

it is useless to propose to compare them with her copy-books and letters written leisurely. UNDER THE LAW. Judge Crump said that as he under stood the law, the evidence offered here should be material; it should be likely to produce a different result, and it should be newly discovered and have should be newly discovered and have been undiscoverable by the exercise of ordinary diligence. All this he insisted it was. It had never entered their heads that Dr. Garlick could carry in his mind the recollection of her writing. That fact only came to them through him since the sentence. So he thought they would be acquitted of want of diligence. Now, is it material? There could be no doubt of that for the note purposts. no doubt of that, for the note purports to put deceased and accused in direct communication. He thought that in the trial no one testified that it was her superscription.

Judge Atkins overruled the motion Judge Crump said that they saved the point. Counsel then retired to write out the bill of exceptions.

Samson are No More. Recently death has been busy in our midst, and the community has been called upon in quick succession to mourn the loss of well-known citizens. Perhaps none that have passed away were better known than Mr. Bolling Walker Haxall, who died yesterday morning at his late residence, No. 107 east Frank-

After a busy life, which ran through seventy-one years, Mr. Haxall has passed from his labors here, full of honors, and ready for the rewards of a better world. He won and retained in all the transactions of his life, varied as they were, the respect and confidence of all who knew him, and has left behind a name of which his relatives may be proud and an example in life worthy of emulation. He was born at "Columbia," a country-seat at that time beyond the corporate limits, but at present the site of the Richmond College, and was the fifth son of the ate Philip Haxall. Of six sons Mr. William Henry Haxall is the only surviving one. Mr. Haxall's whole life, with the exception of a few years' residence in Orange county, where he had a beauti-ful country-seat, was spent in Richmond. He maaried Miss Annie Triplett, daughter of the late John R. Trip lett, who, with her four children-Mrs. Charles K. Harrison, of Pikesville, Md. ; Mr. William N. Haxall, of Baltimore; Mr. Bolling W. His death occurred at his late residence, corner Sixth and Canal streets, yesterday morning at 11:30 He was one of the living links of the past, that past of which so few live to tell. He had seen Richmond grow from a city of but small population to its present size, and had in his ener-

He was born in Leith, Scotland, November, 1795; came to this country when a young man, and was employed as foreman in the foundry of David J. partner of Mr. Burr, the firm-name being Burr & Samson. It was afterwards changed to Samson & Pae, and this firm carried on the foundry business at the corner of Sixth and Canal streets until the evacuation of Richmond, when their foundry was destroyed by the fire. the Mud-Repairs and Improvements. On the 24th day of April last the contract for cleaning out the Old reservoir was awarded Messrs. Hankins & Mosby. They agreed to do the work within sixty days and for the sum of $5,960. They set to work at once, constructed a scaffold, employed hands, and commenced the removal of the mud that for thirty years had been accumulating in the reservoir, rolling it in wheelbarrows over the scaffold to that part of the enclosure on the southern side of the reservoir directly opposite the point at which the body of Lillian Madison was removed from the reser-

After encountering numerous obstacles, the work was finished within the space of time called for in the contract, and yesterday morning Mr. N. D. Hargrove, the faithful chairman of the Council Committee on Water, accom-panied by his committee and Mr. J. Taylor Ellyson, president of the Council, went out to inspect and formally receive the work.

They found an enormous mound of mud of variegated hue piled outside of the reservoir. Most of it was the red washings from the hills of the up-country bordering the James, and it was estimated by experts that there were at least 4,000,000 of gallons of this upcountry soil in the filthy sediment that in the holding capacity of the reservoir

Notwithstanding the wild talk about things that had been thrown in the reservoir, nothing whatever was found in all the vast amount of mud removed save a cannon-ball and an old felt hat, the latter evidently accidentally blown from some person's head while walking near and never recovered afterwards.

In the future there will be no accumulation of mud to any great extent. A new four-inch water-pipe has been laid along the bottom of the reservoir, connecting with the fountain in the centre of it, and so constructed that when the water is let out of the reservoir a hose can be attached to the end of the pipe and the bottom of the reservoir swept with a rinsing shower of water, which will drive the mud into the waste-pipe, which has been constructed for the purpose of conducting it away from the grounds to the branch

Mr. Rose, the superintendent of the reservoir, has the grounds in neat order, considering the great amount of work done thereabouts.

At 9:45 o'clock yesterday morning the first water that has entered the Old reservoir for months poured in from the pipes from the the old pump-house. This was but experimental. The reservoir had to be emptied again for the work to be measured up. The water will be turned on permanently in a day or two.

The Virginias returned from their northern trip Thursday, and at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon opened a series of two games with the Norfolks at Virginia Park. Notwithstanding the threatening appearance of the weather there were about 900 persons, with a number of ladies, present. The grounds were in much better condition for playing than could have been expected after the quantity of rain which fell Thursday. When play began the visitors were sent to the field. They placed Henry in the box, with Derby to hold him, while Pyle and Householder filled similar positions for the home team. Henry's pitching was quite effective. He caused five men to be retired on strikes and only allowed five hits to be made off him. The Virginias, by fortunately bunching these few hits, together with the two errors by Larkin and the one by Carl, succeeded in making three runs. The visitors hit Pylemore frequently, but were not so and the one by Carl, succeeded in making three runs. The visitors hit Pyle more frequently, but were not so fortunate in bunching, and he was so well supported by the perfect fielding of the Virginias that the hits gotten yielded nothing and the visitors were unable to score a run. A Boston special says: The 6:30
Washington train on the New England road to-night conveyed from these scenes a bloodchirsty wretch who for a dozen years has tenanted a solitary cell in the Massachusetts State's prison. The involuntary passenger was James Brown, a Portuguese negro, who, in 1865, killed his captain at sea and drank his blood from the cloven skull. He was tried and convicted in the United States Court here and sentenced to death, but in 1867 his sentence was commuted to life imprisonment, and since that time he has committed no less than twenty-six murderous assaults on fellow-prisoners and on officials of the prison. All efforts to tame him have failed, and for several years no human hand has ventured tame him have failed, and for several years no human hand has ventured within the gratings of his cell-door. Visitors who have curiously peered into the iron-room have instinctively likened him to a tiger in a menagerie, for his bloodthirsty eyes and his constant pacing back and forth have made this comparison the most fifting.

A few days ago, much to the relief of the warden, an order was procured for Brown's removal to the Government Insane Asylum at Washington, and tonight United States Marshal Banks and his deputy, Galloupe, took him to that place. The prisoner was closely ironed and, in addition, his arms were pinioned be-hind him, and with his guards he occu-

A Wilmington special says: Twenty-five years ago William and Sarah Aberneathy, of Philadelphia, each about five years old, became orphans. Their parents died poor and the children were parted and went to live with strangers. The latter neglected to tell the brother where his sister was and the sister was lant in improvement. and the sister was kept in ignorance of the whereabouts of her brother. They changed homes frequently and drifted farther apart. As they grew older both had a desire to meet again, but they did not know where to search or ho to effect a meeting. Both advertised often, but unsuccessfully. A week ago William came to this city in search o employment, and being near his birthplace decided to advertise for his missing sister. The latter, now Mrs. Albert E. Buzine, of No. 105 east Seventh street, read the advertisement and sent her address to her long-absent brother. He called upon her immediately, and was kindly received, but not with a cordiality which such a long separation should demand. Mrs. Buzine was not certain that he is her brother, and be fore she received him as such she desired her aunt, Mrs. Jane Moore, of No. 3206 Richmond street, Bridesburg, to see him. William was sure from the resemblance to the picture of his dead mother that Mrs. Buzine is his sister. He remained here a day or two, and failing to secure employment went to Philadelphia to search for work and visit his aunt.

On Thursday last the buyers at the Tobacco Exchange were out in full force to witness the sale by Mr. George A. Haynes, commission merchant, of this city (who handles very largely the fine manufacturing tobaccos coming to this market), of a line of tobaccos the like of which for excellence have not been seen here for many a day, if ever. There is a region, taking in a portion o Caroline and Louisa counties, which produces, by all odds, the sweetest tobacco in the world; and while other sections make "sun-cured," none has yet approached in flavor the product of the region named. Of course, such an advantage as this ought to be worked is continuous, for it forms the stock of the very best grades of chewing-to-bacco made. This same region is able M. Jackson a member of the Board of Trustees of the Farmville Normal tobacco in great perfection, as is seen by the prices presently mentioned. So, betwixt the two, how could any region be more specially favored?

The following will give some of the figures of this sale: Sold for Joseph J. Boxley, of Louisa, sun-cured, No. 1, to Hargrove & Co. at $350 per hundred; No. 2. to same, at $41. For J. H. Martin, of Caroline, sun-cured, six hogsheads, three of which to Hargrove & Co. at respectively $24.50, $24, and $12.75; two to Joseph G. Dill at $37 and $16.50, and one to W. T. Hancock at $27.50 per hundred. Sold for P. L. Hill, of Caroline, flue-cured yellow wrappers and smokers, eleven packages, at respectively $270, $100, $36.50, $27, $25, $17.50, $15. $15, $13, $10.50, and $8 per hundred. For S. Edgar Swann & Son, of Caroline, flue-cured yellow wrappers and smokers, at respectively $130, $120, $85, $61, $43, $38, $26, $24, $24, $18.75, $17.75, $17.25, $13.50, $12, and $7 per hundred. These fine yellow tobaccos were purchased by Messrs. Allen & Ginter, T. C. Williams & Co., W. T. Hancock, Myers Brothers & Co., W. J. Yar-brough & Son, and P. Lorillard & Co. It is due to the Messrs. Swann, of Caroline (above named), to state that a sam ple of this crop of their tobacco exhibited at the World's Fair, New Orleans, by Messrs. Allen & Ginter, of Richmond, took the first premium over all competitors, and the display there of this type was very large. It had all the brilliancy of color of the North Carolina leaf and the sweetness of the sun-cured.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SOOTHING SYRUP. Rev. SYLVANUS CORB thus writes in the Boston Christian Freeman: We would by no means recommend any kind of medicine which we did not know to be good—particularly for infants. But of Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup we can speak from knowledge. In our own family it has proved a blessies todaed by clying an infant trustledge. In our own asmiry it has proved a blessing indeed, by giving an infant trou-bled with colle-pains quiet sleep and the parents unbroken rest at night. Most pa-rents can appreciate these blessings. Here is an article which works to perfection, and is an article which works to perfection, and which is harmless; for the steep which it affords the infant is perfectly natural, and the little cherub awakes as "bright as a button," And during the process of teething its value is incalculable. We have frequently heard mothers say that they would not be without it from the birth of the child till it had finished with the teething steep on any consideration whatever.
